“F. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, an employer who participates in the Shared Work Unemployment Program pursuant to the provisions of this act shall not have his or her unemployment tax rate computation increased based solely upon shared work benefits paid pursuant to an approved shared work plan; provided, the employer reimburses the actual dollar amount of shared work benefits paid from the Unemployment Compensation Fund as provided in this subsection and the employer continues to pay his or her applicable contributions for all other purposes. The employer shall have a maximum three-year period to reimburse and repay the total amount of shared work benefits paid from the Unemployment Compensation Fund in a previous calendar year. The Shared Work Unemployment Program requires cumulative reimbursements from participating shared work employers beginning January 1 in the year following the calendar year in which shared work benefits are paid from the Fund. If any employer defaults on repayment of shared work benefits paid on his or her behalf from the Fund, the defaulted repayment amounts due each year shall be apportioned between all other participating shared work employers and charged as an adjustment contribution. For purposes of this subsection,

1. “Cumulative reimbursements” means a participating shared work employer’s reimbursement payment is calculated by taking the employer’s actual dollar amount of shared work benefits paid in a calendar year, dividing that amount by 3 to represent the minimal amount of reimbursement due each year during the allowable three-year period for repayment, subtracting any amount the employer may have paid in advance toward the total reimbursement due for that claim year, adding any adjustment contribution required by the Commission for a given claim year, then adding together each of the employer’s reimbursement amounts due for each claim year still subject to repayment, equaling the employer’s shared work reimbursement amount payable to the Unemployment Compensation Fund in the given calendar year; and

2. “Adjustment contribution” means an assessment calculated by the rules of the Commission but not to exceed twenty-five percent (25%) of the total reimbursement amounts due in a given calendar year by all defaulted shared work employers, which is charged to a participating shared work employer’s reimbursement amount due in the current calendar year.”, which amendment was declared adopted.
